PARSONS' LETTERS READ IN SUGAR TRUST TRIAL

Wrote to H. O. Havemeyer as to How to Keep Rival Plant "Out of Competition."

"NURSE THE THING ALONG"

Suggested Accepting Payment of Loan on Plant and "Getting Kissel Out of It," as He Did Not Trust Him.

Letters which passed between John E. Parsons, as counsel for the American Sugar Refining Company, and the late H. O. Havemeyer, its president, dealing with the loun of $1.250,000 to Adolph Segal, were brought to light yesterday upon demand by the government, after they had been withheld for years on the ground of being privileged matter. Henry A. Wise, United States Attorney, offered them in evidence at the trial of John E. Parsons, Washington B. Thomas and the other sugar men charged with having conspired to keep the new plant of the Pennsylvania Sugar Refinery closed by means of stock ontrol acquired as collateral for the Segal nor any other attorney for the government knew what those letters contained. Counsel for the American Sugar Refining Company refused to surrender them during the grand jury investigation which led to the the secrecy of the correspondence until

A lively debate over the matter was expected. DeLancey Nicoll and the other counsel for the defence made no objection, however, when Mr. Wise called for the production of those letters. During informal discussions with Judge Hand about the admissibility of the letters, the govern-ment had pointed to a number of decisions holding that when counsel for a corporation was also a director of that corporation his communications lost the character American Sugar Refining Company at the

H. O. Havemeyer created an impression akin to surprise. The letters were dictated the midst of the entanglements that resulted from the Segal loan.

To Keep Refinery Closed.

In his opening address to the jury Mr. Wise said that after the loan had been made to Segal at the close of 1903 the American Sugar Refining Company, as the lender, was in possession of all the collateral on which Segal could possibly obtain a loan, and that there seemed to be suf-ficient assurance that he could not repay it on June 15, the option day, although the loan did not expire until October, when the sugar season was over and the opening of a new refinery was difficult. Now, he said, he produced the Parsons letters in an endeavor to show how anxlous the American Sugar Company was to ep the refinery in Philadelphia closed. at least until fall, if not indefinitely All of the letters written by Mr. Par-which the government seemed to the date of May 31, 1904. It said:

easily be that Sexal cannot put himself in shape to make a tender. A refusal is the equivalent of a tender. A refusal is the equivalent of a tender.

I think that Mr. Kissel should answer, saying that his parties do not care to divide the transaction, or, upon payment of a partial amount, to release any of the security; that if Mr. Segal wishes to negotiate in respect of the other matters mentioned in his note, he must come here; that it will be necessary for him to see Mr. Kissel. The policy is, nurse the thing along without a break as long as possible. To this Mr. Havemeyer answered, under the same date, as follows:

I think the best way is to refer Mr. Kissel to you, which I have done.

Mr. Kissel has not been authorized to refuse the payment of any loan; Segal's letter reads that way, but it is unauthorized. You will have to watch the matter very carefully, and look out for Kissel.

The next letter read by Mr. Wise was again from Mr. Parsons to Mr. Havemeyer. dated June 7, 1904, which said:

dated June 7, 1994, which sald:

Kissel thinks that Segal has, or thinks that he has, an opportunity to sell out; that if he does sell the purchasers would wish to pay off the loan. I told Kissell that he must not refuse—simply say that if a time were fixed when a tender is to be made he would meantime learn from his principals what their instructions are.

Kissell says further that Segal ried to sell to Jarvie, that Jarvie offered him $2,009,000, and that Arbuckle went through the refinery. My only concern is that with the Wall Street ideas which Kissel seems to entertain, he may involve the transaction by some wrong movement. Rather than run any such risk, it may be better if a tender is absolutely made to accept it. I think so. I think, however, that the time should be shoved along as far as can safely be done.

Says Segal Is Squirming.

What the situation was about the middle of June, 1904, when Segal could avail himself of the option to pay off the loan the government tried to show by the following letter from Mr. Parsons to H. O. Havemeyer, dated June 17 of that year:

meyer, dated June 17 of that year:

Segal is squirming. His lawyer came to see me yesterday. I have a letter from him to-day. It looks to me doubtful whether he can arrange to make a tender. He wishes me to say that if made you will accept it, in order that he can be free then to sell out his position. My answer is that I think that Segal should stand by the transaction as made. The main point is not to say point blank that a tender will not be accepted. I think that the transaction will nurse itself along, at all events for a considerable time. Mr. Kissel told me that he thought that Segal had secured a purchaser. As the lawyer put it yesterday, he is hoping to secure a purchaser. hoping to secure a purchaser.

Reading various letters Mr. Wise led the jury through 1904 to October 1, when the the interest since October I had not been that the American Sugar Company was not 1905, he said, the late Gustav E. In kissel, who had acted as agent in the transaction, wrote to Mr. Parsons asking what action he wanted to take concerning the overdue Segal loan. To this the lawyer voticel that Segal must pay the loan or he collateral would have to be sold; but if Segal had any proposition be must submit Further letters showed that early in March, 196, the matter was submitted to must be taken up or the coffateral and And he added. Out Missel out of it, I do not trust him." Mr. Parsons then wrote If we were to sell Regal out, what would you propose with reference to his as counsel in the matter, and all the fol-lowing correspondence, Mr. Wise tried to show, seemed to indicate that the American Sugar company was anxious to ge rid of the loan, but really never tried to carry out its threat to sell the collateral, although it was advertised for public auc-tion for June 28, 1905.

Kissel wanted to withdraw from the mat ter in March, writing to Mr. Parsons that he was getting apprehensive of publicity and the lawyer asked him to continue promising adequate compensation for his troubles.

A letter from Segal to Mr. Parsons of May 19, 1965, was read, in which Segal said: "I did not know Mr. Kissel was acting for Havemeyer, or I would not have accepted

The prosecution also produced the min utes of numerous meetings of the executive committee of the American Sugar Company, showing that they approved the ourse pursued by Mr. Parsons and made his actions those of the company.

OPPOSE UPTOWN MOVEMENT Drygoods Men Organize to Stop "Scattering of Trade."

For the purpose of mutual protection against the blandishments of the energetic real estate salesman, and specifically to check the movement of drygoods firms out of their old quarters to uptown districts, representatives of seventy-five firms met at the Merchants' Association, at No. 60 Lafayette street, yesterday afternoon and organized under the name of the Wholesale Drygoods Centre Association. The chief grievance of the drygoods men, is told at this conference, is against the real estate operators. They declare that salesmen have prowled about the old downtown district, arguing the advantages of other locations, trying to show by all sorts of statistics that the firms that have moved uptown were doubling their busiindictment, and the plea of privilege kept ness, that the old quarters were antiquated and the whole trend of mercantile trades was northward, and the sooner business houses took advantage of their opportunities to move the better it would be for them. These tactics were occasionally varied, said the drygoods men, by the circulation of rumers that this firm was about to move and that that house was secretly preparing to leave its old establishment, the result being a general unsettling of business.

Various representatives of wholesale firms addressed the meeting, and presented of being privileged. Mr. Parsons was not arguments to show that a large majority only counsel, but also a director of the of those houses which had moved uptown now regretted the change and would return only did the scattering of the guild over the city cause fluctuation in prices and the undermining of confidence, but that by the aged lawyer eight years ago, in the new sites were by no means as adaptable to the needs of the trade as the established section. Accordingly, a committee of fifteen was appointed for protection against the wiles of the real estate

Havemeyer and bore the form of a letter from a physician in inal action be allowed to see the grand his home city to another physician in At-I return the note from Mr. Kissel and Segal's letter to him.

I do not think that any papers can be drawn which would insure the refinery being kept closed until October 1. If to put it in running order complete to start will take such a length of time as will measurably accomplish the purpose of keeping it out of competition for this season, I think that it is better to accept repayment.

to ut of compellition for this season, I think that it is better to accept repayment of the loan on June 15, the interest being paid up to October I.

This is a matter about which Mr. Kissel should be very careful how he writes, and in no case should he say that he will not accept repayment of the loan. It may save the letter from the Birmingham physician he was satisfied that everything was all right, and told Mr. and Mrs. Favish shape to make a tender. A refusal is the shape to make a tender.

Newspaper Woman Modifies Story About Meals Sent In.

APPEAL AGAIN TO THE JURY

Schiff and Gans, However, Offer No New Argument, and So May Get No Answer.

Virginia Tyler Hudson, the newspaper writer, ordered only two meals for Brandt n the three weeks that he languished in the Tombs in 1907, and she didn't know who paid for them. This is regarded as a considerable modification of her statement ecently published that she, as a reporter investigating his imprisonment, supplied him with meals from an outside restau rant to get into his good graces. Brandt has testified that Mortimer L. Schiff paid for the diet he enjoyed at the time.

Mortimer L. Schiff and Howard S. Gans hrough Paul D. Cravath and DeLancey Nicoll, made a further appeal yesterday to appear before the grand jury, which is considering the Brandt case. In a letter to Judge Crain, a copy of which was also addressed to the foreman of the grand jury, they offered to waive immunity. They presented no new argument, however, in favor of their testifying, and in view of Judge Crain's recent decision that they could not possibly escape immunity in testifying, the grand jury will take no action on the latest request, it is understood.

In the course of a long session yesterday the grand jurors heard Virginia Tyler Hudson explain her statement just re-The auditor of "The New York expense bill turned in by Miss Hudson at the time to cover the purchase of Brandt's meals, will appear before the grand jury William George Galpin, a butler in the Galpin can only repeat for the most part what his employer had told him of the alleged burglary, however, and it is not supposed, therefore that his evidence was considered important Another witness was August Reymert. who investigated the Brandt case for Senator Knute Nelson in 1909. This is the sec ond appearance of Reymart before the grand jury. The report he got from Gans which led Senator Nelson to drop the case what connects him most closely with the present inquiry.

The session lasted until 5:20 o'clock, but ailed to include the testimony of Brandt imself and Police Inspector McLaughlin, oth of whom sat waiting to be heard until ate in the afternoon. Both will testify to-day, it is expected. Brandt to tell again and in more detail his version of how he

BRANDT TO TESTIFY AGAIN M'FARLAND FEARED WIFE 'Bunny" Letters Talk of Alleged

Threat of Shooting. In one of the "Bunny" letters written by Florence Bromley#to Allison MacFarland. and made public in Newark yesterday, she expresses a fear, born apparently of some thing MacFarland had written to her, that Mrs. MacFarland might shoot her hustand, who is now under death sentence for pol-soning his wife.

A part of the letter, sent on September 16

Goodness! Do you think she might shoot you? Wouldn't that be an awful mess? Then I would have to shoot her before I died. But I hate to think of you fussing around her. Seems like you are at home when you talk that way, unannounced, I don't mind you meeting her places and talking business, but it seems almost as If you were living with her when you go and see her that way. Yes, I am jealous. I can't help it, even if I knew you did nothing but scold and beat her the whole time you were together.

This letter was written just before Mrs.

This letter was written just before Mr3 MacFarland died, as her husband now asserts, by suicide. In his letter, made pubic on Monday, MacFarland argues that his wife's act was deliberate, as the bitter taste of the poison would have caused her to stop drinking it had it been taken in error, rather than purposely. cutor says that the "Bunny" letters made the reason for murder plain. Just before the letter quoted Miss Bromley wrote:

If all goes well, sweetheart, you should be free by the first of November; but, then, you may have a six months' threat hang-ing over you. So, at the very latest, we should be one by next May.

Something over a month earlier Miss

Your love is all the heaven I care to know, only, please, please don't ever give me up. Shoot me, poison me, cut my throat that you have kissed so often, but don't give me up. I just love you, and it makes me unhappy to be misunderstood. No, no! I would never be satisfied to be your affinity. I want to be your wife in the eyes of he world.

Many times in the course of the letters which went to the jury Miss Bromley suggested to MacFarland that he destroy what she wrote to him. In February of 1911 she
